Revised 3/29/05

Finding journal articles when 1) searching databases with Find Text, and 2) working from a citation.

- 1) Use Find Text if searching a database that has Find Text. An example from PubMed:

J Zoo Wildl Med. 2003 Sep;34(3):287-91. Related Articles, L

FindText

Adult-onset hypothyroidism in a lynx (Lynx canadensis).

Greer LL, Troutman M, McCracken MD, Ramsay EC.

- 2) From a citation:

a) Check ejournals list → b) then check catalog → c) then Preston or ILLIAD.

a) First, check ejournals list: <http://www.lib.utk.edu/ej/> The list is both in the catalog and on the AG-VET MED Library homepage. If your journal is not on the ejournals list, go to #2.

b) Second, check Catalog: Use Browse (it works better than keyword usually). Type in either the full title (Annals of Internal Medicine). An abbreviated title also works many times (Ann Int Med). Browse works especially well for with one word journal titles: Nature, Cell, Science, etc.

Searching: Full Catalog

Search for a keyword:

Type a word or words:	<input type="text"/>
Is it a phrase?	<input checked="" type="radio"/> No <input type="radio"/> Yes
Select field to search:	Comprehensive Keyword
<input type="button" value="Go"/>	<input type="button" value="Clear"/>

Or browse a list of headings:

Type a word or phrase:	annals of internal medicine
Select index to browse:	Title begins with ...
<input type="button" value="Go"/>	<input type="button" value="Clear"/>

c) Third, If the journal is not in the online catalog, and if it is human and clinical, check Preston Library ejournals list

<http://gsm.utmck.edu/library/>

OR

skip looking at the Preston list and request the article from ILLIAD (interlibrary loan) or Ingenta (do-it-yourself interlibrary loan)
