The Press  may  may not disclose my identity.

Newfound Press (www.newfoundpress.utk.edu) publishes content that meets one or more of the following criteria:

- Demonstrates scholarly rigor
- Offers an innovative presentation, particularly involving multimedia
- Contains content and approach of potential interest across disciplines
- Reflects regional relevance
- Merits wide dissemination and preservation, but unlikely to be published by a traditional press because of narrow focus or innovative format

Please address the following questions as they relate to the manuscript.

1. What are the purposes and main arguments of the manuscript?
2. What significant contribution does the manuscript make within its field?
3. To what extent will the work be useful to scholars in other fields? To general readers? To students (at what level)?

4. Is the scholarship sound? Are quotations/translations accurate? Have the proper sources been cited?

5. How could the organization be improved? Does it make a well-rounded book?

6. Characterize the style of the manuscript. Are stylistic revisions needed?

7. Comment on the importance of this book in relation to other books published in its field.

8. What specific revisions are needed?

General Comments:

The Press reserves the right to share the report in whole or in part with the author or a foreign publisher (for copublication purposes), but will not show it to deans, department heads, foundations, other US publishers, or anyone else outside the press until the manuscript has been accepted for publication.

My overall reaction to the manuscript is:

- I strongly recommend publication
- I recommend publication. I offer suggestions for revision, but the author's adoption of these should be left to the discretion of the press.
- I recommend that the press proceed with consideration of the manuscript if the revisions suggested in the attached report are made.
- I do not recommend publication.
